More than three dozen graduate from Correctional Officer training academy

Dover, DE – 38 Correctional Officer cadets graduated today from the 233rd Correctional Employee Initial Training (CEIT) Academy and took their oaths of office as Delaware’s newest law enforcement officers at a ceremony attended by Department of Correction leadership and staff, family and friends. Cadets completed an intensive 12-week program of classroom and hands-on instruction in multiple subject areas including inmate supervision, defensive tactics, emergency preparedness, weapons and chemical munitions, report writing, behavioral health training, CPR/Basic First Aid, and inter-personal communication skills.

“When you take the oath of office and receive your badge I know you will take in the moment and respect that as an officer with Delaware’s largest law enforcement agency it comes with the highest authority and responsibility to always act with integrity and courage,” Department of Correction Commissioner Claire DeMatteis said to the graduates. “You will face challenges. We all will. You have the training skills and life experiences to carry out our department’s dual mission of public safety and second chances.”

Today’s graduation featured a traditional badge pinning and a ceremonial procession to the sound of the Delaware State Police Pipes and Drums. Watch a video stream of the ceremony online at www.facebook.com/decorrection.

Keynote speaker, former Department of Correction Commissioner Stan Taylor, urged the graduates to build a reputation for being firm but fair. He drew on his 31 years of correctional experience to encourage them to act collaboratively with educators, counselors, healthcare providers and other correctional staff who are committed to providing inmates with treatment and training so that they can return the community in a better position to succeed and remain out of the criminal justice system.

Cadet Tamara Hudgon served as Class Speaker and Cadet Andre Mickens was selected by academy instructional staff as Outstanding Cadet.

The instructional team for CEIT Class 233 consisted of Primary Instructor Dean Edge, Instructor Craig Brumbaugh and Drill Instructors Vincent Lewis and Tyler Wilton.

The graduates begin their new careers with the Delaware Department of Correction next week.
